

Dublin City Manager Named Most-Admired Executive

Dublin City Manager and OCMA member, Dana McDaniel, was recently named one of Central Ohio's most-admired executives by Columbus Business First, as judged by a vote of his peers.

McDaniel has served as City Manager of the City of Dublin since 2015 and is responsible to City Council for the day-to-day operations for the City. Other responsibilities include advising Council regarding the financial status and future needs of the City, reporting to Council on the general operating of City departments, divisions, offices, boards, commissions, bureaus and agencies, as well as exercising leadership in the development of City projects.

Mr. McDaniel is a member of many professional associations, most notably the International City/County Management Association and the Ohio City/County Management Association.
